

ONE DAY PRISON TERM FOR LUTTGEN, AUTO LAW BREAKER

Tried on Third Offense Clause for Speeding, He Gets Minimum Punishment.

William Luttgen, the automobile policeman as the "Flying Dutchman," was convicted in the Court of Special Sessions today of violating the speed law as a third offense. Under the law a conviction of this kind carries with it a term of imprisonment. Luttgen got off with a sentence of one day in the Tombs and a fine of $10.

Luttgen has had considerable experience with the police, according to the records. In April, 1907, he was arrested twice for first speeding, and was let off with fines. In January last he was again taken into custody and fined $50. On Sept. 10 he was arrested on Lexington avenue, near Fifty-second street, going at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. He was held for trial on this charge, and District Attorney Jerome filed a third offense information with the Justice of Special Sessions against him. Ten days later the record was again arrested on Park avenue. The speed was more than twenty miles on that occasion. When the papers in this last case were received at the District Attorney's office, Mr. Jerome decided to make an example of Luttgen, and his trial was set for today. Assistant District Attorney Derby arrived with Luttgen's record, presented the demonstration, and the violation of the law on Park avenue and then asked his case. The accused had no defense except to say he had started to avoid a collision.

Luttgen is the man who drove a Mercedes car in the first Vanderbilt cup race. He is now a demonstrator for high speed cars.

Winter Apparel for Men

Suits, $15 to $45—Overcoats, $15 to $65

On the principle that "the king can do no wrong," some men still cling tenaciously to the old idea that tailored-to-order clothes must be right because—oh, well, because they are tailored-to-order.

As a matter of fact, throughout the land, custom tailors to-day "take their cue" from the best ready-for-service clothes.

In distinctiveness of modeling, in perfection of fit and finish and in the attractive colorings and patterns of fabrics, no made-to-measure clothes excel (and few of them equal) the productions of our own skilled designers and tailors.

Suits & Overcoats for

Young Men, $12 to $20 (SIZES 36 TO 40)

Few of the younger generation are content with the staid patterns and conservative models of older men's dress.

And no variation of models alone will result in satisfaction. The cloths must provide a difference as radical as the cut.

The success which meets our productions each season is due, not to chance, but to a perfect understanding of these requirements—and the needed facilities for fulfilling them.
